

The 2011 Boise Valley Horseshoe League

By Mickie Park

It was another successful year for the Boise Valley Horseshoe League. With three different divisions and thirty teams, the season promised some good play. Games began in April with the season winding down through August. Accuracy, skill, and luck weed out the best from the rest.

Horseshoes is an easy game to learn, and fun for all to play, but the serious know there is more to it than just pitching a horseshoe toward a single upright pole forty-feet away. The game can be played as singles or doubles, and most parks around town have a pit put in by an Eagle Scout where you can.

With names like the Six Shooters, Shoo-ins, and Claim Jumpers the competition seemed to be fierce. This year the Regulators brought their game, and made it to the top. Including team captain, Bryan Chilton, and team members Don Boden, Harry Montgomery, and Rick Humphreys, the men played solid, consistent games showing nice form and exceptional pitching.
